NOSTALGIC EARLY AMERICAN SCENES

Robert G. Schneeberg has re-created in his 12 scenic compositions the charm of an earlier America. This reminiscence begins with the Cradle of Liberty, Philadelphia's INDEPENDENCE HALL in January. February's TRAIN TO THE POCONOES back-tracks through time, clouding the winter air with smoke from its boiler. As a setting for March, the delicately laced balconies in the FRENCH QUARTER of New Orleans clearly show a Spanish influence. Alligators and other inhabitants of OKEFENOKEE SWAMP PARK seem almost too eager to pose for pictures during April. The ornate but attractive DUTCH PALACE provides a sharp contrast to the informal country house of a Pennsylvania farmer in this May landscape. On a sun-parched western plain, the RIDGELEY STAGE meets passengers on the June train from the East. In salt-sprayed July, the PEACE docks at Mystic Seaport, Connecticut. In August, the K.C. QUEEN of a bygone era rules the waterways of the Midwest. And the LITTLE RED TROLLEY of old Los Angeles clangs its way through September. Buffalo grazing beneath the October sun are not disturbed by the train whistle screeching through the COLORADO territory. In November, early American tourists to Taos, New Mexico, view a PUEBLO CEREMONIAL, ancient even to Indians. December ends this year's historic circuit by depicting one of the stately GEORGETOWN MANSIONS, built in the days of Jefferson.
